

Introducing Open Art Studio
at the Westerhoff School of Music & Art
SPRING 2024
TUESDAYS, 11:00 AM-1:00 PM

Join other artists in a studio setting as we all create our next body of art! Take this opportunity to share ideas, delve deeper into the process of art making, and finish projects still unresolved at your home headquarters that need to be released into the wild!

The Open Art Studio will be available for two Tuesdays each month (the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month), starting on February 27. Artists can register for a single, or multiple sessions by choosing the dates they would like to attend on the registration form below. Formal instruction will not be provided, but artist and Westerhoff School art instructor Mickey Waring will be present at all sessions as facilitator. Each artist will bring whatever they would like to work on to the studio. Although there are basic supplies in the studio, we ask that you bring the bulk of materials you require for your work with you.

The cost is $15.00 per two-hour session. You will receive an email invoice after submitting your registration form (allow some time for processing), to be paid upon receipt. Space is limited to five artists so please register as soon as possible.

Artists working side-by-side in a studio allows for creative collaboration and exchanging of ideas, leading to new perspectives and approaches to our art making. Artists can learn new techniques from one another and expand the vocabulary of their work. There is also the possibility of soliciting critique and constructive feedback from peers which can bring new challenges and move one's work forward.
